

MCBRIDE ALIVE.

An adventurer's handbook
for all that is McBride and the surrounding area.

2026

WELCOME TO THE WILDEST OF THE WILD.

With the highest mountain in the Canadian Rockies just a stone's throw to the east, real BIG nature shines its brightest in McBride's high elevation backcountry.

Shred. Swoosh. Clip-clop. Crunch. Squish. Splash. Choose your mode of travel and unleash a laundry list of adrenalized sounds.

Or sing that Simon and Garfunkel song in your head...in the silence... because there's something for the spirit to say about the meaning of life amidst nature's cathedral.

BUT...our real secret sauce lies in the SMALL...the faces, the conversations, the friendly to be met in the train station, a shop, on a tour, or in the tavern at our authentic mountain community basecamp. From hours to days, take stories home that were lived well to tell.

LET THE MCBRIDE ALIVE
SPIRIT SHINE BRIGHT FOR YOU.

MCBRIDE ALIVE

Embrace every moment with energy, purpose, and connection.

Grow, adapt, and pursue vitality to experience life fully. Feel the pulse of possibility...to thrive in every opportunity...to spark change within yourself and the world around you.

THIS IS THE SNOW

that Vicki tossed on her wedding day, shortly after she tossed her bouquet.

SNOW FOR IT

The Renshaw. Say no more. 800 m forest to 2,500 m of hill climbing....in the largest managed snowmobiling riding area in BC... is our backyard. Oh yeah, let's add Tommy Creek, Belle and Lucille for the quad play.

*"It lived up to the hype!
Of the three main riding areas in McBride, we rode both Lucille and Renshaw. Both zones well worth a visit."*

A high-angle, close-up photograph of a brown horse and its rider crossing a river. The horse is in the center of the frame, moving towards the bottom. Its head is lowered, and its front legs are partially submerged in the water, creating a large splash. The rider is wearing dark clothing and a helmet, and is holding the reins. The water is a murky green color with white foam from the splash. The background shows the continuation of the river and the legs of another horse and rider in the distance.

BE PREPARED

The joy to be found in “no limits”...has its limits. We are the “wild” in wilderness. Being prepared is critical. We have some tips to keep in in tip-top condition to make 5 o'clock somewhere intact

GET SMART

Educate yourself about the particular hazards of the area, i.e. wildlife, steep terrain, sudden weather changes, avalanche risks, etc – plan your trip and come prepared.

WINTER – KNOW BEFORE YOU GO!

Are you planning to adventure in avalanche terrain? Everyone in your group needs to carry avalanche safety equipment (transceiver, shovel and probe), and know how to use it. An Avalanche Skills Training (AST) course is your place to start.

Check Avalanche Canada's forecasts before you head into the backcountry:

avalanche.ca/map

Consider taking an avalanche skills course from a local provider, Robson Backcountry Adventures:

jasperhikesandtours.ca

Whether you're snowmobiling, ski touring, ice fishing, or snowshoeing this winter, you'll find lists of essential items, links to training (for all ages), along with trip planning and safety tips at adventuresmart.ca

Ever wondered about cross-country ski etiquette?

Shuuussh on over to crosscountrybc.ca/my-trail-etiquette-promise to be in the know.

WINTER ACTIVITY TIPS.

- Ski with others.
- Wear appropriate clothing and take food and water.
- No dogs on trails when snow is soft, please, and no fat bikes on trails!
- Snowshoers, please stay off the groomed area and stick to the sides of trails.
- Use caution on hills, and fill in your sitzmarks.
- Ski on the right hand track.
- Yield to skiers coming downhill.
- Yield to faster skiers passing.

SUMMER – CARRY ON WAYWARD SUN

Hiking, biking, horseback riding, jet boating...so many fun in the sun choices. Whichever you choose, come prepared by planning your trip, carry essential items (including navigational tools), let others know where you are going and when you are likely to be back. The lost and found box is an anxious place you don't want to be in.

Know before you go hiking tips for trips from Adventure Smart:

Giddyup on over to this site to find a list of essential items specific to horseback riding:

SAFETY IS THE WHATEVER (WHAT)
FLOATS YOUR BOAT.

Summer and winter, have this tuff in tow:

- Wear Your Lifejacket – Sadly, over 80% of drowning victims in Canada were not wearing their lifejackets, or wore them incorrectly.
- Boat Sober – Operating a boat under the influence of alcohol, cannabis, or prescription drugs is not only dangerous but also illegal.
- Take a Boating Course – Operators of powered recreational vessels are required to have a Pleasure Craft Operator Card or equivalent proof of competency.
- Be Prepared, You and Your Vessel – Ensure both you and your vessel are ready for your planned activities (safety gear, check weather, adequate fuel, file a trip plan).
- Be Cold Water Safe – Cold water can drastically reduce your ability to swim or stay afloat. Wearing a lifejacket is your best defense against cold-water immersion risks.

MCBRIDE ALIVE IS TO THRIVE

In McBride, to be truly ALIVE is to feel all the adrenalin rush in the up, down, and all around backcountry WILD.

But for all the BIG that is our geography, there's much to be said for souls that find their contentedness in SMALL moments. A horse braying in the meadow. A crisp winter walk with a dog, thankful to be free of worry. A stroll on Main Street amidst the sharp colours of early morning. A fresh conversation with a new face over coffee at the café. In the quiet of the mind lies inspiration for re-energized paths forward.

For the feeling of gentle, free, safe, slow, and RELAXED, McBride is also for you. For the adrenalin and the peace, a place on a highway in near-North comes to mean much more when we scratch the itch that is our quest for better life and living. And just maybe... for YOU... the grass can be greener and the snow can be whiter for you here.

See if the shoe/boot/ski boot/hiking boot/riding boot/snow shoe fits.
